

Crow Executive Air to receive NBAA's 75-Year Safe Flying Award

Crow Executive Air is honored to receive The National Business Aviation Association (NBAA) 75-Year Safe Flying Award at this year's Business Aviation Convention & Exhibition (NBAA-BACE) in Orlando, Florida. The award was presented by NBAA's President and CEO during the Leadership Perspectives on Aviation Safety session.

The National Business Aviation Association (NBAA) recognized Crow Executive Air for 75 years of safe operations and accident-free flying while serving the aviation community. These awards serve as a testimony to the high degree of professionalism and safety culture within participating companies.

The Flying Safety Awards program was launched in 1953 by the NBAA board of directors to promote a culture of safety in business aviation operations. The association is committed to making business aviation as safe as possible and encourages all members to participate in the awards program to enhance safe operations and gain recognition for their outstanding performance.

Crow Executive Air has made aviation its business, its only business. Beginning with G-73 Grumman Mallards in 1947 Crow Executive Air provided fishing, hunting, camping, exploration, and movie making teams with access to remote areas worldwide.

Today, Crow Executive Air is a premier provider of On-Demand Air Charter tailored for the complex needs of private travel. Convenient hubs located in Toledo Ohio and Charlotte North Carolina provide quick and easy service to any destination along the east coast.
